History of Camden School for Girls

Frances Mary Buss is recognised as a pioneer in girls' education and in teacher training. Her pupils were amongst the first girls to take public examinations and to go to university, and many went on to become pioneers themselves. Her school became the model for girls' schools throughout the country and indeed the world.

The Admissions Process

120 places are offered representing the full range of ability.

Applicants sit a banding assessment and are placed in one of four ability bands.

30 places are offered in each band in the following priority:

1. A statement of special educational needs (EHCP)
2. Looked after and previously looked after children
3. Siblings (to qualify the older sibling must be on roll still in September 2027)
4. Exceptional medical or social need
5. Musical aptitude and / or ability
6. Distance

In addition to the banding (and music assessment if relevant) you must complete an e-admissions application. This is where you list your 6 school choices in order of preference.

The deadline is October 31 2026.
